By Grant Merritt

Web Video Editor

Celebrating UNCP’s 124th birthday, Founders’ Day offers an opportunity for an audience of 300 people on March 15 in the Givens Performance Center at 3 p.m., to hear Dr. Ben Chavis, native of the Saddletree community in Robeson County. Chavis speaks as part of the final Elmer W. Hunt Photograph Collection Identification and Discussion Series of the school year.

Dr. Chavis, a native of the Saddletree community in Robeson County, spoke to the crowd about the themes he saw in Hunt’s photographs and his experiences in the education system. Chavis said he has seen Hunt’s pictures while working as a doctor.

Dr. Chavis also said he saw a lust for life. “This school [UNCP] has a lust for life,” said Dr. Chavis. “We have a lust for life. Whatever we do, we do it well. We have a lust for life and we have a lust for work.”

While many have seen the movie Field of Dreams, and may recognize the name “Moonlight” Graham, few know in what context he played behind Archibald Walter “Moonlight” Graham. That is what Robert Reising, a retired English professor from UNCP, offered March 15, in the Givens Performance Center.

Reising explained how Graham’s life is described in the book Chasing Moonlight: The True Story of Field of Dreams’ Doc Graham, which was written by his book published in 1982 called Shoeless Joe.”

One of the new characters he added was “Moonlight” Graham, whom he found in the Baseball En-

While many have seen the movie Field of Dreams, and may recognize the name “Moonlight” Graham, few know in what context he played behind Archibald Walter “Moonlight” Graham. That is what Robert Reising, a retired English professor from UNCP, offered March 15, in the Givens Performance Center.

Reising explained how Graham’s life is described in the book Chasing Moonlight: The True Story of Field of Dreams’ Doc Graham, which was written by his book published in 1982 called "Shoeless Joe.”

One of the new characters he added was “Moonlight” Graham, whom he found in the Baseball Encyclopedia, playing only in minor league games.

1951 until 2010

Assistant Dean for Research Services of the Mary Lenox Coke Coleman, who was born on March 31, 1951, is to be honored this year at the UNCP Founders’ Day celebration on March 15.

Assistant Dean for Research Services of the Mary Lenox Coke Coleman, who was born on March 31, 1951, is to be honored this year at the UNCP Founders’ Day celebration on March 15.

By Hayley Burgess

Managing Editor

Nearly 200 people filled the Mary Livermore Library March 15 to hear Dr. Ben Chavis speak as part of the final Elmer W. Hunt Photograph Collection Identification and Discussion Series of the school year.

Dr. Chavis, a native of the Saddletree community in Robeson County, spoke to the crowd about the themes he saw in Hunt’s photographs and his experiences in the education system. Chavis said he has seen Hunt’s pictures while working as a doctor.

Dr. Chavis also said he saw a lust for life. “This school [UNCP] has a lust for life,” said Dr. Chavis. “We have a lust for life. Whatever we do, we do it well. We have a lust for life and we have a lust for work.”

While many have seen the movie Field of Dreams, and may recognize the name “Moonlight” Graham, few know in what context he played behind Archibald Walter “Moonlight” Graham. That is what Robert Reising, a retired English professor from UNCP, offered March 15, in the Givens Performance Center.

Reising explained how Graham’s life is described in the book Chasing Moonlight: The True Story of Field of Dreams’ Doc Graham, which was written by his book published in 1982 called "Shoeless Joe.”

One of the new characters he added was “Moonlight” Graham, whom he found in the Baseball Encyclopedia, playing only in minor league games.

1951 until 2010

Assistant Dean for Research Services of the Mary Lenox Coke Coleman, who was born on March 31, 1951, is to be honored this year at the UNCP Founders’ Day celebration on March 15.

Assistant Dean for Research Services of the Mary Lenox Coke Coleman, who was born on March 31, 1951, is to be honored this year at the UNCP Founders’ Day celebration on March 15.

By Hayley Burgess

Managing Editor

Nearly 200 people filled the Mary Livermore Library March 15 to hear Dr. Ben Chavis speak as part of the final Elmer W. Hunt Photograph Collection Identification and Discussion Series of the school year.

Dr. Chavis, a native of the Saddletree community in Robeson County, spoke to the crowd about the themes he saw in Hunt’s photographs and his experiences in the education system. Chavis said he has seen Hunt’s pictures while working as a doctor.

Dr. Chavis also said he saw a lust for life. “This school [UNCP] has a lust for life,” said Dr. Chavis. “We have a lust for life. Whatever we do, we do it well. We have a lust for life and we have a lust for work.”

While many have seen the movie Field of Dreams, and may recognize the name “Moonlight” Graham, few know in what context he played behind Archibald Walter “Moonlight” Graham. That is what Robert Reising, a retired English professor from UNCP, offered March 15, in the Givens Performance Center.

Reising explained how Graham’s life is described in the book Chasing Moonlight: The True Story of Field of Dreams’ Doc Graham, which was written by his book published in 1982 called "Shoeless Joe.”

One of the new characters he added was “Moonlight” Graham, whom he found in the Baseball Encyclopedia, playing only in minor league games.

1951 until 2010

Assistant Dean for Research Services of the Mary Lenox Coke Coleman, who was born on March 31, 1951, is to be honored this year at the UNCP Founders’ Day celebration on March 15.