Chevy to the Levee has something for all

UNCP Chancellor Kyle Carter and his wife, Sarah, walk the trails at the ninth annual Chevy to the Levee festival at Luther Britt Park in Lumberton on Sept. 10.

Festival-goers pedal boats on the water at the Chevy to the Levee on Sept. 10 at Luther Britt Park.

A child gets her face painted at one of the many stations set up at the Chevy to the Levee festival at Luther Britt Park in Lumberton on Sept. 10.

Children wait in line to climb a rock wall that was part of the Chevy to the Levee festival at Luther Britt Park in Lumberton on Sept. 10.

Runners take off from the starting line at the Chevy to the Levee on Sept. 10. There were several different races that were broken down by distance and age groups during the event.

Runners take off from the starting line at the Chevy to the Levee on Sept. 10. There were several different races that were broken down by distance and age groups during the event.