Students affected by tuition surcharge

Students who were affected in the fall semester did not receive a notice because the official guidelines were not adopted until the day before classes began.

The new policy has been updated in the fall 2010 course catalog. A waiver procedure is available for students who have military service obligations, serious medical disability or other extraordinary hardship.

The money generated by the surcharge reverts back to the state along with regular tuition charges. The original tuition surcharge was established in 1994 and has taken 16 years to increase. The registrar’s office does not foresee an additional increase any time soon.

For more information on the tuition surcharge, visit the Office of the Registrar’s website at www.uncp.edu/registrar.
