Galvez helps celebrate Hispanic Heritage Month

By Ashley Williams

As part of the campus-wide celebration of Hispanic Heritage Month, photographer Jose Galvez in honor of Hispanic Heritage Month, the Office of Multicultural and Minority Affairs, UNCP's Community Engagement, and Chicano Latino Center. The exhibit was "Al Norte Al Sur" for viewing until Oct. 29.

Galvez described himself as a bridge that connects the world to the Latino experience. He said he wants people to gain from his photos the understanding that "we are all one family of humanity." Bakarian, who was in the audience, said that he liked the photos. Nixon said that he be came interested in Latin American culture while attending school and taking Latin American courses at the university. "I just wanted to learn more and I learned a lot today," Nixon said.

American Indian artists come from American Indian life there is something for everyone to learn at the Museum of the Native American Resource Center.

North Carolina campus.

"I'm able to share with community and a deep understand-ging of burning through the wood.

"Photographing the lives of Latinos is not a one-

"Role model"

"I just wanted to learn more and I learned a lot today," Nixon said.

According to Galvez' website, he brought his family to North Carolina in 2002 where he photographed Hispanic imminents of California. In 2005, Galvez recurred funding for his project"Land of Opportunity: Latino Entrepreneurs of North Carolina."