The University is poised to make an ecological statement with its unveiling in 2012 of the Allied Health Building and its innovative living green roof.

“The living roof will be an attractive element of the ‘The living roof will be an attractive element of the Allied Health Building green roof and students like junior biology major Kyle Strawn is eagerly awaiting the opportunity to be a part of the project.’”

“Thrilled about UNCP’s initiative to go green.”

A green roof, similar to this one atop the Allied Health Building in Richmond, Va., will soon be seen on top of the new Allied Health Building on campus when it opens in January.
