Students visiting Bert’s in the University Center or Café Ala Carte in the Oum- son Science Building will find that both locations no longer carry Krispy Kreme products.

“I miss Krispy Kreme because Bert’s is not the same without the doughnuts,” freshman Eric Jacobs said.

He added that Krispy Kreme would only reimburse Bert’s for the unopened doughnuts, and as long as Bert’s sold out of the stock inside of Bert’s and Café Ala Carte would feature a “sweet alternative.”

The policy states in order to have the absences excused, students must submit a written notification to their instructors within the first two weeks of the semester. Students are not required to provide certification of the reason for the absence.

Immediately following the fire, the excellent response from the North Hall staff. “It’s wonderful that the fire happened,” Redfearn said. “But we trained our staff for the possibility of fires, and that’s why we have fire drills. Our staff is trained to handle these types of situations.”

North Hall Resident Administrator Marshica Watson said that residents were allowed to return to their rooms at 4:30 p.m. after all the smoke was cleared.

Watson said that the fourth floor at North Hall meet- ing that night at 8 p.m. to discuss the fire incident, but no one revealed any names. “I was worried about all of my stuff because my room is right in front of the bathroom,” freshman Emily Duke said. “It was a very big inconvenience.”

North Hall third floor resident advisor Kun Nguyen said that she was very shocked and disappoint- ed that a resident of North Hall would “cause mayhem on campus.”

Campus police are still investigating the matter. If anyone has any informa- tion, please contact the cam- pus police at 910-521-6235 or email at police@uncp.edu.

The state legislature now requires North Car- oolina schools and universities to allow students to be absent from class to observe religious holidays. According to UNCP’s new policy, students will be allowed two excused ab- sences each semester to ob- serve religious holidays.

According to Dr. William Gash, provost and vice chancellor for Acad- emic Affairs, the policy is mandated by the state legis- lature and should be in- cluded in syllabi for the spring semester.

The policy states in order to have the absences excused, students must sub- mit a written notification to their instructors within the first two weeks of the se- mester. Students are not re- quired to provide certification of the reason for the absence.

Students will be given a reasonable amount of time to make up tests or other course work that is missed due to an observance of a religious holiday.

Students will not be pe- nalized for absences from class or other academic ac- tivities because of religious obser- vances. If a student believes he or she has been unreason- ably denied an educational benefit due to religious be- liefs or practices, they may seek a remedy through the student grievance proce- dure.
