Parking renovations planned for summer 2011

The University agreed to close the entrance because there were no cross arms at the railroad crossing. According to Martin, closing the south entrance was part of the master plan to reconstruct the parking lot and the section of Hwy 711 in front of McDonald’s and Lowery Street. There will be traffic lights put up at Lowery Street and the entrance to the parking lot will also have a light. Concrete barriers will also be placed in front of McDonald’s to better control the cars attempting to turn.

Martin does not know when the work will begin but said the contract is under study to examine whether there are fewer students at UNCP, but DOT may start work on Hwy 711 earlier.
