Carolina Civic Center renovated, opens Feb. 13

By Mario Fulmore

The Carolina Civic Center in Lumberton, N.C., listed on the National Register of Historic Places, is scheduled to reopen after a two-year hiatus where $1.5 million from the USDA to renovate the building. Most of the changes were made to the infrastructure instead of working on eye appeal.

The auditorium of the Carolina Civic Center in Lumberton is being fully restored. All the renovations of the building took two years to be completed.

Regrettably, some of the former issues to be done. We put a new cat was not available. Instead of eyewash. Feasibility study, research and workshops studies were key factors in the execution of this project, and this also consists of non-profit support.

“Community members are also vital in making contributions to this project, and this also consists of non-profit support.”
